

ACCREDITED DUCHENNE CENTERS PROGRAM

Worldwide accreditation for Duchenne care centers.

ADC now accepting applications for Duchenne Centers Accreditation

Amsterdam, 17 February 2023 – As of today, World Duchenne Organization is thrilled to announce that the Accredited Duchenne Centers (ADC) Program is now accepting applications. The Accredited Duchenne Centers Program is designed to achieve worldwide uniform and up-to-date care for everyone living with Duchenne muscular dystrophy.

Accredited Duchenne Centers provide comprehensive care according to the international care considerations and consensus guidelines. The program is initiated by the World Duchenne Organization.

Register your interest to become an Accredited Duchenne Center

Interested Duchenne centers are invited to submit their application at the ADC website. To be eligible for application, Duchenne centers must provide multidisciplinary care, which may be delivered either by one center, or shared with other locations. However, the applying center is responsible for the care plan, coordination, communication, documentation and collaboration. A letter of support from the national patient organization is part of the application process. There are no costs associated with applying for accreditation.

The ADC Program supports uniform care, optimal patient experience and global recognition. An educational program is part of the worldwide ADC Program.

For inquiries, please contact Merel Jansen, PhD, Program Manager of the ADC Program at merel.jansen@worldduchenne.org.

About World Duchenne Organization

The World Duchenne Organization is the global umbrella organization of 50 national patient organizations from 38 countries. We are committed to finding a cure and viable treatments for DMD and BMD, promoting care considerations and consensus guidelines, and informing parents and people living with the condition around the world.